INTRODUCTION

In Introduction, Authors should state the objectives of the work at the end of introduction section. Before the objective, Authors should provide an adequate background, and very short literature survey in order to record the existing solutions/method, to show which is the best of previous researches, to show the main limitation of the previous researches, to show what do you hope to achieve (to solve the limitation), and to show the scientific merit or novelties of the paper.

Avoid a detailed literature survey or a summary of the results. Do not describe literature survey as author by author, but should be presented as group per method or topic reviewed which refers to some literatures.

RESULTS AND DISCUSSION

The research results are presented comprehensively and in accordance with the scope of the study. The research results can be supplemented with tables, graphs (figures), and/or charts. Tables and figures are given numbers and titles. This section contains answers to the problems identified in the introduction. These answers represent the final conclusions of what has been discussed and analyzed in the previous section.

The discussion section presents the findings logically, linking them to relevant references from national and international journals, GAP analysis, scientific novelty, and clearly explained findings, as well as comparisons with references from relevant national and international journal research results.

CONCLUSION

The conclusion contains a brief summary of the research results and discussion. The conclusion is the research finding in the form of an answer to the research question or research objective. The research results provide suggestions/contributions to the application and/or development of science.
